Customer Reviews

I am homeschooling my son for Kindergarten this year and so far, none of the RAN boards, "Read in 100 lessons" books, Sight Word Flashcards, or even a Sight Word tablet app (that got great reviews from others) worked. My son would get bored after a couple of tries and not even an hour later would forget the words we went through. Out of desperation and frustration, I went through trying to find a system that would actually work for him. Somehow I stumbled upon this product and started reading the reviews and descriptions of this system. The price looked reasonable (if it doesn't work then at least I didn't lose too much money) and the system itself seemed to make sense (story with sight words repeated throughout and a short quiz at the end). 2 days after ordering we got it in the mail and I immediately dove into it. Having read the parents workbook, I called my son over to see what the first two sight words (they, go) would do for him. We sat down like we do for our daily reading time and I first read the book outloud while pointing to the words. The book was entertaining enough for him to enjoy the illustrations and short enough that it didn't make him lose focus. After the first time he wanted me to read again so I did. The third time in a row, I asked him to try to read along with me. The fourth time, he was able remember the sight words on each page and even passed the "quiz" on the inside back cover. He was so proud of himself he wanted to do it again, including the quiz. Just to ensure he wasn't just memorizing a pattern, I would point to the words in different order when doing the quiz. By this time he was so happy he wanted to "read to grandma" so we called my mom and as I pointed to the sight words on each page, he would read them. We got to the quiz and he passed with flying colors! Then he ran off to play/watch tv and I put the books away. 2 hours later, hubby came home and my son wanted to read to him too. It had been a couple of hours since he last saw the sight words so I anticipated some struggling. He did mess up once or twice but I had him calm down (he was super excited), breathe slowly, concentrate and focus on the words. He was able to read both sight words both in the story and when I gave him the quiz in front of daddy. Bottom line: THIS SYSTEM WORKS! Now I can supplement this with phonics reading for non-sight words and he should be ready for 1st grade at a school next year!

I LOVE these books! I have used these with all three of my children in their journey to start reading. The text is very predictable and focuses on the sight words featured in each book making it easier for the child to catch on! I would highly recommend these books as well as others in this series to help your child gain confidence in their early reading skills!

My daughter has started these at school and it will be great to be able work on them with her at home. She was so excited she can read 2 books all by herself, she is not even 3 in half yet. Excellent way to jump start your child learning in the right direction.

So great! Purchased as a gift for my 4 year old niece and within a few minutes she was already recognizing sight words and 'reading' the books!! She was so excited that she read a book to her Montessori preschool class the next day!

Perfect for a new reader!

I love these books and they are easy to work with children who are beginners with sight words and learning to read.

These sight word books are great. They offer repetitive words for early readers. This is the way children learn how to read. The pictures are cute, and my daughter loves how she can carry around the box. It makes for easy transportation, so we take these everywhere and practice her reading even when we're traveling! I definitely recommend these as they emphasize sight words, which are the building blocks for reading.

My five year old loves to read these books! His ability to recognize and recite the words in these books has increased tremendously. He can be a handful at times with books that he finds boring or tedious. These books were fun and he read through them voraciously when we had him read them before bed. The box is very sturdy and takes a beating nicely after being put through the ringer by my child.
