NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC KIDS inspires young adventurers to explore the world through award-winning magazines, books, website, apps, games, toys, television series and events and is the only kids brand with a world-class scientific organization at its core. Julie Beer has been a writer, editor, and researcher in publishing and radio for more than 20 years. She is a regular contributor to National Geographic Kids books, including the popular Weird but True series, the Ultimate Explorer Field Guide series, and the This or That? series. Beer lives in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Our son loves all of the Weird but True books. He has ADD and loves to read books that are filled with facts and shorter bits of information instead of longer children's books. He reads at least 30 minutes-1 every night before bedtime.

My grandson spends hours reading the weird but true books. He absolutely loves them. He has learned a lot of facts from them. He seems to like nonfiction as opposed to fiction, but I'm happy that he is reading anything. I have gotten him many books from this series as well as a similar series of fact books. He even likes the children's almanac. He should be ready for jeopardy in another 10 years.

Our 12 year-old grandson is more than an avid reader. He absolutely loves all the Weird But True books. They are chock full of loads of facts that one would not learn in any other book. Example: I handed him a certain brand of bottled water to which he replied, "I don't want that brand." I asked him why not, and he said "the water has too much salt in it."! I stopped drinking that brand too, because I can't get it out of my mind. I cannot recommend the Weird But True books enough if your child loves learning new facts.

My grandkids love this book. Any inquisitive child will spend hours reading and rereading this book. Even the grownups found some fun facts in here.

Amazing Author, Perfect Material To Entertain & Educate Young Minds Sarah Wassner Flynn Is Extraordinary!!

I bought 3 titles in this series for my grandkids and they love them. Keeps them occupied in the car and they quiz each other on the contents.

As advertised
