Simply known as RHJ. Knowing that the greatest good comes from helping others without expecting praise, the author of this work has requested that his name be omitted.

This short book is filled with tested instructions on how to attract what you earnestly desire. Only three times a day, review your very detailed list of your wants/needs, then the rest of your day, stay "tuned in" to your thoughts. Always give genuine gratitude when you receive items from your list. Remove what you attracted, add what you desire. Never brag. Stay humble.

This book is truly amazing! I manifested countless things using the plan in it. The plan has 3 main points in it but the author also says to read or listen the book over and over which I still do because every time you get a new understanding. I read the book every day so my faith in the process is strenghtened because often you do need sometime before you see manifestations, but they always arrive. I also follow the advice of getting acquainted with people who have the things I want. I write my list using the present tense and I am very very specific in all the details for each point. So far I have manifested: The perfect husband (we have been very happily married since the last 10 years) Learning English (I am Italian) The perfect house The perfect business premises 3 dream holidays one of which totally free (what a story!) Meeting celebrities including the Pope (for a catholic like me I can assure you meeting the Pope is like for some pop fan meeting Madonna!!) 2 amazing and unsolicited local paper free articles for my business A free aestetic surgery (which I refused in the end) Improved a serious autoimmune disease (scleroderma), my antibodies went from 500 to 143 in 3 months! Each of these manifestations should have review space of their own for the unbelievable way they came through, but I don't have much time! A word of caution. Please on each point on the list add something like "for the good of all" because this power does anything to get you to the point not worring of the consequences. For example I hadn't thought of the way the free blefaroplastic surgery would arrive so it arrived in a scary way. My eye lid got a bump on it which doctors didn't know what it was so I had exams for it for months with no real results, initially we were fearing it was cancer! In the end it wasn't but they couldn't leave me like that so they offered a NHS surgery to put it right. When I realised the incredible and dangerous way my aestetic surgery was coming I refused it. The bump cured itself withing a month!

I wanted to read this because it was mentioned in another good book that I recently read entitled "Write it Down. Make it Happen" by Henriette Ann Klauser. "It Works" is listed as a "book", but it's really more of a pamphlet. For that reason, I wouldn't advise paying more than a few dollars for it. The ebook edition is currently $1.99. I've wasted more than that on soda and candy so I figured that two bucks would not be such a bad investment. The ideas put forth are very short, very sweet and very simple. In a nutshell, the rules to getting whatever it is that you desire are 1) Write it down 2) Re-read what you've written and think of it often 3) Don't talk to anyone about it, except maybe to yourself and whatever higher power you subscribe to. Seriously. That's essentially it. It sounds crazy, but there is an underlying method to the madness. Writing it down helps you to explore exactly what you want and why you want it. Re-reading and reflecting on it often puts you in a position where you are always focused on your goal. If you are constantly focused on your goal, you are more likely to eventually take the necessary steps toward it. Not discussing it with anyone is really about not exposing yourself to the naysayers and internalizing that negativity. You should strive to surround yourself with people who have similar goals. Those are the people that you should be talking to. It doesn't really matter what the goal is and none of this is groundbreaking or earth-shattering. It's basically a reiteration of what many people already know. Some of us just need a nice little reminder and a pep talk from time to time. For two bucks, it works.
